What this is, and is not

These are practice games for use alongside a speech-language pathologist's own plan. They do not replace a speech-language pathologist's plan or advice. Every cue for the child is yours: the pages that need one have a blank SLP cue line for it.

A Filled-In Game Record (Invented Child)

"Mia" is invented. These numbers are made up to show how the record and snapshot are used.

Mia's cue, as the invented speech-language pathologist wrote it

SLP cue: S games with the picture cards, one game each week. A correct try is whatever the invented plan says it is.

#	Date	Game	Sound	Tried	Right	Percent	Notes
1	9/8	S path game	S	12	6	50 percent	First games with the S cards
2	9/15	S bingo	S	12	7	58 percent	–
3	9/22	S roll and say	S	18	12	67 percent	Longer game, more words
4	9/29	S path game	S	18	13	72 percent	–
5	10/6	S picture sentences	S	18	14	78 percent	Started the sentences
6	10/13	S spin and say	S	18	15	83 percent	Ready to try the home log

How to read the record

- Game 1: 6 of 12 words said right, 50 percent.
- Game 6: 15 of 18 words said right, 83 percent, which is 33 points higher than game 1.
- Percent is said right divided by words tried, times 100, rounded to a whole number.
- The games got longer after game 2, so compare percents, not counts.

The snapshot sentence this record gives you

In game 1, Mia said 6 of 12 words right (50 percent). In game 6, she said 15 of 18 (83 percent).

Every number in it is in the table above.

Where each number came from

- Tried and right are counted during the game and written on the record.
- Percent is worked out from those two numbers and nothing else.
- Copy this layout for your own child with real numbers.
